

Gurgaon is among the fastest developing city in Delhi NCR and no other city has been able to showcase such rapid growth and transformation as it did in the recent past. In a very short span of time, it has become the IT and BPO capital of India. It is all set to become one of the mega cities of the country.

The major reason behind such instant makeover of the city is its strategic location. It connects Haryana to Delhi, the national capital and this proximity has done wonders for prompt development of the city. "With conversion of National Highway 8 into Expressway and development of peripheral state highways by state government, Gurgaon has become more proximate to Delhi and other micro cities of NCR," says Ashok Singh Jaunapuria, Executive Director, SS Group.

Real estate developers also feel that presence of corporate giants make this place more suitable for real estate growth. "The growth of real estate of Gurgaon is backed with strong corporate presence
